Masters of Social Science: Community & Youth Work (MSocSc CYW)

Are there social issues that you feel passionate about?

Do you think young people should have opportunities to shape the world they live in?

Are you inspired to challenge inequality and work for human rights?

Do you want to work on creating the conditions for positive social change in society?

The Masters of Social Science in Community & Youth Work is a two-year programme with two 14-week supervised fieldwork placements at its centre.

As a student you will participate in a programme of professional education and training that engages you as an active participant in your learning, working in solidarity with those affected by human rights denial, poverty and inequality. You will learn to foster the development and empowerment of communities and young people and facilitate the active participation of people in addressing issues that affect them collectively.

The MSocSc CYW equips students for employment in community development, youth work, and associated equality, human rights, international development, local development, local authority, national institutions, and international agency work.

- 2 years full-time or 3 years part-time in-service
- Professionally endorsed programme (AIEB & NSETS)
- In-service route provides for specialism in community development or youth work; includes recognition of prior learning (RPL) for suitable candidates.

Graduates of the programme are currently working in local community development and youth work projects, work with Travellers and Roma, homelessness, migrant rights, rights of sex workers, anti-racist and intercultural work, disability rights, media and communications, international development, politics, public policy, government departments/agencies, education & training, and more.

An information session will be held via Teams on Thursday 22nd of May at 6pm. Please email cywrecruitment@mu.ie (<mailto:cywrecruitment@mu.ie>) to express your interest and you will be sent a link.
