WHO WE ARE

The Irish Cancer Society is a community of patients, survivors, volunteers, supporters, health and social care professionals and researchers. Together, we are working to save lives and improve the lives of people affected by cancer.

At the Irish Cancer Society, we have a vision that by 2025, 3 out of 4 Irish cancer patients will survive their diagnosis and everyone affected by the disease will have access to world-class treatment, care and support.

We're looking for a Survivorship Manager to join our team for a period of maternity leave cover. As Survivorship Manager, you will manage existing survivorship and lead the envelopment of new innovative supports for people impacted by cancer through multiple delivery channels.

WHAT YOU'LL DO

A cancer diagnosis impacts all areas of a person's life. At the Irish Cancer Society, we aim to reduce this burden of cancer and improve the quality of life for everyone affected by cancer.

The role of the Survivorship Manager is to manage existing survivorship and welfare supports, and lead the envelopment of new innovative supports for people impacted by cancer through multiple delivery channels.

You will work with the Head of Service Operations, your direct reports and the wider Services Team to achieve the ambitions for survivorship supports set out in the Irish Cancer Society strategy. You will lead a programme to identify, develop and deliver new support services to help reduce the burden of cancer and improve the quality of life of people affected by cancer.

You will be the lead relationship manager for how we engage and work with community-based cancer support groups, enabling the Society to deliver evidence-based high impact services.

Please see Job Description attached below.
