Being Right About the Past or Putting the Future Right? Everything you want to know about Resonance, Dissonance, Coherence, and Interference but were Afraid to Ask!

Free Zoom Webinar Wednesday 18th June - 7.00pm - 8.30pm

Some things are right, and some things are wrong. And that's my final word on the matter!

When things go wrong in relationships of all kinds this principle usually translates out as: I am right, and you are wrong. Discussions and arguments involving right and wrong are usually based on past events and rarely lead to resonance, coherence and agreement because sometimes being right or wrong doesn't apply or at least isn't helpful in finding a better future.

As an example there is this:

Who is right and who is wrong?

Sometimes it is possible to be right and wrong at the same time.

Right about your point of view being right from where you are looking at it and wrong about the other person's point of view being wrong because your view won't let you see theirs!

In resolving conflict and building sustainable relationships we need to gently let go of concepts like right and wrong and focus on building a safe ecology where different views, feelings, perceptions, and needs can be shared without being weaponized. In this way we can help build understanding, empathy, coherence, resonance a future that learns from the past and builds a better future rather than destroying it by throwing the rubble of the past at it to prevent it happening.

As Rumi said:

"Out beyond the ideas of rightdoing and wrongdoing there is a field. I'll meet you there."

It is doubtful that Rumi knew of things like Electromagnetic and Quantum Fields in the way that physicists talk about them today.

But maybe he knew about "fields" in ways that they don't?

For things like energy, vibrations and frequency have been known about for thousands of years.

Though maybe some scientists know some things beyond the realms of "things"?

"If you want to know the secrets of the Universe, think in terms of energy, frequency and vibration".

– Nikola Tesla.

In this free Webinar we shall be looking at how changing the energy and approach to relationships and conflicts within them can release the future from the prisons of right and wrong to the freedom of:

If we build it, it will come.

All are welcome and hopefully it will be an interesting and revealing process together with some light bulb moments along the way.
