
Process Work Ireland (<https://www.activelink.ie/node/21225>)

Process Work Ireland is committed to facilitating individual and collective change in the world. To this end, we provide training programmes, public seminars, community development and education programmes, individual and group process facilitation and supervision. We also promote research in the field of Process Work.

We believe in awareness as a path to a deeper understanding of ourselves and our world. We are guided by a deep organising principle, the global dreaming, which is at the heart of life. We follow the concept of deep democracy, thereby facilitating the fullest expression of all voices and viewpoints.

Process Work, as an approach to facilitating change, presents a world view that is both holistic and challenging. It is of interest to those in counselling and psychotherapy, in education, community and social work, to leadership in corporate and political arenas and to religious and pastoral workers, in fact to every human being who is interested in world change.
