The Gaiety School of Acting - The National Theatre School of Ireland is a Not for Profit organisation working in the Cultural sphere. Our message is to enhance Creativity and Confidence through the medium of performance. Our policy is to train actors for the theatre, film and television industries. The school provides an extensive programme of part-time courses for adults, children and young people throughout the country that encourage individuals to grow in confidence and develop techniques which will enable them to respond to the challenges of theatre, film and television while also being pro-active in the development of new work.

We have a huge variety of courses running throughout the year, tailored to all ages. We are self funded operation and believe our rates are affordable thus making drama accessible to everyone.
